

Simona Hauri

Analyst

Economist and Statistician
cand. MA UZH Economics

Simona Hauri studied economics at the University of Zurich between 2014 and 2021. Her research interests entailed labor economics as well as international macroeconomics.

She gained first professional experiences by doing a commercial apprenticeship at UBS in Aarau. She worked in various business units including mortgage and commercial clients advisory as well as wealth management. After finishing the bachelor's degree studies, she was an intern in the inflation forecasting unit at the Swiss National Bank. This gave her the opportunity to gain valuable insights into the policy process of a central bank and to contribute to various research projects.

During her studies, she worked as a teaching assistant for the lecture Microeconomics II and as a research assistant in the fields of labor economics and international macroeconomics at the University of Zurich. Further, she actively contributed to the Economics Club (a student association at the University of Zurich).

Since July 2021, she has been working for Fahrländer Partner Raumentwicklung.
